Nordic APIs fifth event in Denmark

Nordic APIs upcoming half-day event will be held in Copenhagen, March 1st this year. This is the 20th event Nordic APIs is arranging and the fifth in Denmark, and for the first time the event will only consist of workshops.

- At our last event all of the workshops sold out, so it's a popular concept, says Simon Andersson from Nordic APIs.

In the ambition to live up to the attendee's expectations the workshop subjects have been carefully chosen based on current topics, with the aim to make difficult concepts more graspable. With more interactive and practical events, with the possibility to do hands-on exercises and ask questions, it is expected that the attendees will absorb the information in a better way.

- During our workshops the attendees will get theories interspersed with practical exercises from real use cases. In addition, they will of course have the possibility to ask questions and exchange experiences, Andersson explains.

So far one workshop is scheduled, "OAuth and OpenID Connect in Practice", but more workshops are planned to be held parallel. The idea is that the attendees will choose the subject they are most interested in, and attend that workshop. The event will be held at Comfort Hotel Vesterbro in Copenhagen between 12 pm and 5 pm.

- Copenhagen is an important player in the API sphere so it's great to come back again.
